

ABSTRACT

A method, apparatus, user-interface, and system to enable users to take advantage of new and existing telephony features. An internet access device determines its current call state, and displays help information, or menu options showing the features available in the current state. Internet access devices may download additional help information or menu items when new features become available.

500 400 300 200 100 0